Patent Trace Chain.

THE subscriber has invented and obtained a patent for cutting and bending links to make chain of different sizes.

Chain made of those links will have a superior advantage over the chain made in the common way as the iron is first drawn into a wire which makes each link of an equal thickness and more beautiful and strong than the common chain.

To the wholesale merchant they will be sold at 21 doll. per dozen. The links will likewise be sold to blacksmiths or others at 23 dolls per hundred pounds with the necessary complement of rings, each chain requires six pound of links.

Orders accompanied with the cash will be promptly attended to by the subscriber at his works adjoining Pittsburgh.

From the India Gazette, received at the office of the U. S. Gazette.

The Rajah of Nepaul has fallen a victim to the Small Pox. He died on the 20th Nov. and has been succeeded by his only son, a child of three years. The following account of the horrible sacrifice performed at his funeral we have taken from the Government Gazette.

"Valley of Nepaul 20th November, 1816.

"I have just returned from witnessing a sight, that has made such an impression, as will not readily be effaced from my memory; and in the hopes that it may be acceptable, I take my pen to endeavour to paint to you the picture. My mind is in a right frame for it, but Oh Yorick! that I had thy imagination to trace the fact, with the imagery it requires, to convey an adequate idea of the scene to those who did not behold it.

"You will have heard, ere this, of the havock the small pox has been making, for these three months past, among the inhabitants of this delightful and interesting valley. When it first appeared, apprehensions were entertained for the safety of the Rajah and his family, and measures were adopted, which for a time kept them and the inhabitants of the city of Kathmandoo free from the infection, but it was only for a time, it soon reached from the peasant to the Prince, and notwithstanding vaccination had been successfully administered, to some of the principal families of the Court, either superstition or a dislike to innovation had prevented a part of the Rajah's family from receiving the benefits of it, though frequently tendered in a pressing manner.

"On the 2d, an infant son of the Prince's died, from the effects of the raging distemper; and this morning information was brought to the Resident, that the Rajah, who had for some days been labouring under it, was carried down to the holy temple of Pusputnauth, which is looked upon by all Hindoos, as one of the Portals of Heaven, that in breathing his last, his soul might be admitted, in its passage from its earthly frame, to the happier Regions which this temple is believed to be the entrace of. Such is seldom, or ever done, until the person is supposed to be drawing to his end; and as this was the case, in the present instance, the Prince was early in the morning, accompanied by the Chief Officers of his Government, his relations and domesticks, who as is customary on such occasions, walked with his palankeen bare headed, and bare footed to the Temple.—A little after, he ceased to be a Prince; and the event was communicated to the Resident, who, as a mark of condolence, and in compliment to the court, proceeded with his suite in mourning, and on foot, to the spot where much more awful scenes, than had yet occurred were in a state of forvardness, I mean the preparations for the human sacrifices, that the death of a Hindoo Prince, in these mountainous regions, invariably demands. On reaching the Temple, we were received by the venerable Raj Gooroo, or high priest, whose hoary locks bespoke his lengthened years. He was in tears, mentioned that one of the Ranees, one of the Concubines of the Rajah, with five of their female attendants, were to burn with the remains of their master; and after lamenting, on the passing events, pointed out to us a spot, at little distance, from whence we could witness the scene; and retired to continue the obsequies of his departed Prince.

The funeral pile was erected in the bed of the Bunymutte River, which in its course through the valley is very shallow, and here so narrow, that its sacred waters wash the foundation of the Temple of Pusputnauth, on the one side, and moisten the trees of its gloomy grove, that overhangs it, from the other; and as we were beholding the funeral rites, in a most anxious state of suspense, the sonorous sounds of the Singho, while they tended, by taking off the attention of the devoted females, from the surrounding crowd, to fit them for their approaching end, added solemnity to such scenery. Our situations did not admit of distinctly observing, what might be called the niceties of the awful ceremony; but we were near enough, to distinguish the inocent victim of superstition, who was about sixteen years old, and said to be of an interesting figure, take off her ornaments, threw loosely over her loins and breast a cloth; as she ascended the pile with her companions, she distributed to the brahmins, her relations and attendants that stood around, a couple of elephants, some buffaloes, bullocks, calves, horses, and frankincence, with the cloths and ornaments she had just thrown off—meant I believe, as marks of her regard, or as proofs, that she parted from this world in peace with all: and saying as we were afterwards, told something to those who were supposed to be most endeared to her (for whatever a Suttee utters, is looked on as prophetick) she placed the head of her departed husband on her lap, when heaps of sandal-wood, smeared with oil, and ghee, were piled around her, and her companions, on which a great number of torches, descending the steps of the Temple, communicated their flames to the combustible pile, at the same time, that the hallowed groves, & temples re-echoed the shouts, and groanings the multitude set up; and, in a moment the souls of the devoted girls fled, in shrieks to Heaven!!! To Heaven, I say; for surely an all just, and all directing God, granted the boon their acts were directed to obtain, however erroneous in the opinion of a Christian, the mode of seeking it may appear!!!

Calcutta, Dec. 18.—A very interesting case has just occurred of a person born blind, being restored to sight, by the means of a Surgical operation. A native of Burdwan, of the age of eighteen, was lately sent by his family to Dr. Luxmore, whose success in the removal of cataract, they had heard by public report. The operation was performed on the 26th ultimo. and in 6 days he began to see, and distinguished objects. After the celebrated case of Dr. Chesselden's patient, whose sensations have be so minutely, and philosophically laid before the public, it can hardly be expected, that any discovery regarding the origin of our ideas of figure, distance, or quality, could be extracted from the observation of an ignorant country boy, who unaccustomed to think abstractedly, is little able to describe the gradual improvement of his intellect under this sudden, and astonishing introduction to the visible world. He confirmed, however, with readiness, the conclusion so obvious, from the feelings of Dr. Chesselden's patient, that our common judgment of figure, quality, and distance, is not an inherent faculty in the mind, but a practical result, from the ever repeated experiment, of comparing the perspective with the actual figure, bulk or distance. For when a Cricket Ball was put in one hand, and a cube of Soap in the other, and he was desired to describe their shape, he was unable to do it, by his newly acquired, and inexperienced vision; and was obliged to have constant recourse to the more practised sense of feeling.—When any object is presented to him, altho' he can without hesitation declare its colour, he is wholy unable to decide on its quality, until he is allowed to handle it.

The Right Honorable the Governor Gen. having heard of the case, took so much interest in it, that he requested Dr. Luxmore to bring the patient for his inspection. He was accordingly brought before his Lordship on Saturday last, who, together with the lord Bishop of Calcutta, seemed to derive the greatest satisfaction from his examination.

LIVERPOOL, March 24.

Cashman's Wake and Funeral.—Wednesday se'nnight the body of this unfortunate man was carried by his friends to the house of Mr. Joseph Brunge, the sign of the soldier Retired, in Rosemary lane, where it was waked according to old Irish Custom. It was laid out in a large ball room on the first floor. The body was in a neat elm-coffin, placed on a table under a canopy of sheets, ornamented with cut paper, bows of blue and white ribbon, flowers, and bunches of evergreen; the body was dressed in a handsome shroud, ornamented with flowers and evergreens, and in each hand an artificial nosegay; on each side of his head and feet were two wax tapers. The coffin plate bore the following inscription: "Mr. John Cashman, died 12th March, 1817, aged 28." The room was filled with persons of every description; no smoking was allowed; according to Irish custom when the deceased dies without the means of a decent burial, a collection was made; for this purpose, a table was placed outside the door on the landing place covered with a white cloth, at which two men stood with plates in their hands to receive the donations of those who chose to go in and view the body. The number of persons whom curiosity brought were very considerable; amongst them were many respectable persons of both sexes, who paid from 2d. to 1s. 18d or a 3s. piece. There were benches all round the room for the convenience of those who wished to stay, and each night was passed by telling some stories or exploit of the deceased. At half past two o'clock on Sunday, every thing being arranged for the funeral by the undertaker, they proceeded with the corpse followed by a vast multitude of persons of every description, especially sailors, to Stepney Church-yard, where his remains were interred. For fear of any disturbance, several constables were ordered to attend.

The 300 miles match in 10 days.

Lieut. Landale who started at Sant Herts, to do the above distance, in the given time for 200 guineas, did 63 on Monday, and 57 on Thursday. He is a powerful young man, and walks five miles an hour with much ease; he travelled 7 miles in one of the hours on Tuesday. He commenced his labor about 4 o'clock yesterday morning and at 8 when our account left, he had done 22 miles before breakfast.

The labors of excavation at Pompeia have lately been renewed. On the 22d ult. a magnificent temple was discovered, in the midst of which were found statues of colossal proportions, one of them from 20 to 22 palms in height.

KINGSTON, (U. C.) April 19.

Singular Circumstance—A flock of 315 sheep belonging to capt. W. Gill, has been wintered on the Gallos islands, in lake Ontario, without a single handfull of hay or any covering but the bush—They were salted regularly twice a week by the person who had charge of them, and he positively asserts that they entirely subsisted on ground hemlock and moss wood. In the severest weather they retired to the swamps. The sheep are in better order this spring than they were when they were put on the island last fall. This island lies 39 miles from Kingston, and 12 from Sackett's Harbor.

NOTICE

HAVING relinquished my interest in the publication of the "Pittsburgh Gazette," since August last, it is necessary that all accounts for subscription, advertisements, &c. to that time, should be liquidated.

I now call upon all those indebted, to make settlement before the first of May next, either by paying the balance due or giving due-bills therefor. Those subscribers whose papers were sent by mail will please forward the amount of their accounts, in the same manner—where accounts have not been furnished, little difficulty can occur in ascertaining the amount due. I hope this notice will be attended to, in order to prevent trouble and expence.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1817.

NEW-YORK ELECTION.

The general election in the state of N York, commenced on the 29th ultimo, and continued three days. The hon. Dewitt Clinton, is elected governor by nearly a unanimous vote. Mr. Taylor, re-elected lieutenant-governor.

An election of congressmen and state legislators, is going on in Virginia. In the choice of legislators, rotation in office is all the rage. Of one list of twenty-eight members elected, the Richmond Enquirer says, nineteen of them are new ones.

To the names of those gentlemen elected to the Fifteenth Congress from Virginia, may be added that of Alexander Smyth, (formerly a general officer in the army) by a majority of 500 votes over his opponent Mr. Estill, from the district lately represented by Mr. Sheffey.

Gov. Claiborne, of Louisiana, expended a considerable sum last year, out of a 'contingent fund,' in endeavors to stop the crevasse which caused an alarming inundation of a part of New-Orleans, &c. The Senate of that state have refused to recognize the expenditure.

Pernambuco, which has revolted from the government of the king of Portugal and Brazil, is near the most eastern part of the latter kingdom. There is a town and captainship of the same name. Of the last, the chief town is Olinda. It is yet to be known whether the Court of Rio Janeiro will be able to subdue and punish this revolt, or whether the revolution will be maintained and spread to the whole dominions. The troops must be called from the banks of La Plate and this will relieve the Spanish revolutionists in that quarter. Reinforcements for the Royal cause will probably be sent from Portugal, and the British may be under some engagements which may oblige them to assist the King.

NO PARTY MEN.

"Some very vain and some weak men, and some very great hypocrites, pretend to be of no party; while they arrogate to themselves, a discernment, superior to both parties; they affect to be neutral and undecided between them. They claim the title of the truest patriots, and to love their country with the ardour of passion, yet they inconsistently condemn the violence of both parties, and expect to have both believe that the fire of their zeal subsists pure and unexpected in the frost of moderation. Such men are often flattered as federalists, more often used as democrats, but always held in a contempt that is never more hearty than when it is discreetly suppressed."

The above paragraph is from the writings of that distinguished orator and statesman, Fisher Ames, and applies with peculiar force to very many of the present day.

It is said that some American Officers in England, have caused some merriment at their own expense, by appearing in public dressed in a finical, and even foppish, manner—particularly by travelling in stage coaches with golden spurs on their heels. It certainly is not very easy to discern at once, the use of spurs in this mode of travelling. But we must think that the English ought to give them credit for their ingenuity in the case under consideration. If we are not mistaken, we are indebted to John Bull for the fashion of sharp heels with which our boots are made so comfortable and so ornamental at the present day. Now we will venture, that an Englishman would not be able, if his ears depended upon him, to keep a spur on one of the true-blue sharp-pointed heels—he would either wear it on his ancle, or it would slip off.—And yet Americans, it seems, succeed so well in this difficult process, as not only to ride in stages with them, but to walk about the streets. How even our countrymen would manage their spurs after their boots have become a week old, and are well run down upon each foot, we do not know. It is a case that has not happened as we have heard.—N. Y. Adv.

CHARLESTON, April 28.

A company of United States Artillery, detached from the different garrisons in this harbour, under the command of Captain Donoho, marched from this city yesterday, for Fort Scott, near the boundary line between East Florida and Georgia. They are to act against the hostile Indians, who have recently been making depredations in that vicinity.

INTERESTING LAW SUIT.

A suit has been brought by the president and directors of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria, against the directors of some of the other banks in that town, on the ground of the defendants having used means to prevent the circulation of the notes of that bank.

This is probably the first case of the kind, which has occurred in the United States, altho' in England, cases analogous to it, have been decided.

The plaintiffs are said to found their claim to damages, on the circumstance of a run on the bank having been produced by false alarms, purposely circulated by the defendants, as to the solvency of the bank, and a partial injury thereby caused to the circulation of its paper.

FOR THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

OLIO.

As the first communication with which we have been honoured, comes from abroad, we give "Spectator" to the world, as we received it, without alteration or amendment, except where our natural horror of tautology forced us; but we must confess, that on reaching the end of his piece, we could not forbear exclaiming, "Oh! most lame and impotent conclusion!" From the complexion of his exordium, we were in hopes that we were to be gratified with an excellent philippic, not only against the absurdity, but also against the criminality of some part of the modern dress. How was I disappointed then, when he concludes by saying, that "his only object is to shew, that if we are satisfied to have a yard of broadcloth dangling at our heels, the ladies are content to have their necks encumbered with a prodigious quantity of superfluous muslin."—Oh no! Mr. Spectator; you had something more important in view, when you began; your talents can shew more than this, and I call on you as a frequent correspondent. If, (as I suspect,) you are a disciple of Galen, I beg you to exert yourself against the extreme of corset wearing, if this poisonous taste is encreasing in your village; as for the cottage-frock, collerets and short dress—I, Mark Medley, self-created arbiter of taste, do give them my perfect approbation; as to the long-tailed coats of the beaux, this is another affair. I cannot help thinking, that if the Venus de Medicis would look ridiculous with a broad corslet-iron, propping up her chin, that the Apollo Belvidere would not cut a much better figure in a petticoat frock-coat. I have such a veneration for the classic taste of antiquity, that I am apt to refer all my ideas on this subject, to the ancient models; of this, more, much more, anon. As for "Spectator," we shall be glad to hear from him again; but we will take the liberty of advising him to mature his subject in his mind, before he commits it to paper, and when he has fixed upon it, to stick to his subject, bearing in mind Horace's rule,

> ——Servitur ad imum,
> Qualis ab incepto processerit, et sibi constet.

M. MEDLEY.

Brownsville, April 28, 1817.

Mr. Medley,

A few days since, on looking over the Gazette, I was much pleased with the perusal of the first number of the Olio—publications of that kind are very acceptable at this time, seeing the papers are so barren of news.—If you think the following worth publishing, you are at liberty to insert it.

So fond are we of amusement, that it has become as indispensably necessary for editors of periodical journals to present their readers with entertaining matter, as it is to spread before them the news of the day, or the labours of the philosopher. This no doubt, has a beneficial tendency, inasmuch as the mind after close application to business or to intense study, requires relaxation, and there is no recreation so delightful to a person fond of scientific and literary pursuits, as the perusal of that kind of composition, which, if it does not instruct, is calculated to amuse. Impressed with this idea, I have presumed to give you the following observations, and if they have the effect of yielding amusement or gratifying the taste of some of your readers, the object of them will be accomplished, and I shall not think the time employed in writing them entirely thrown away. The readiness of the Belles and Beaux's of the present age to grasp at any innovation in the article of dress is truly astonishing; health, comfort and convenience are not unfrequently the sacrifices paid at the shrine of fashion. I have been induced to make these reflections on observing the dresses now worn by our fashionable ladies—from one extreme they have fallen into another; from being very prodigal of their charms, they have become equally parsimonious; after exposing their arms and neck to our view, they have become so extremely delicate that all these attractions are excluded from our sight—the habit at present in vogue, I am informed by a female friend, is called the cottage frock; this dress is closed up in front, fitting tight round the neck and surmounted with a double row of ruffles called collerets, very short, showing the elegant contour of the foot and ancle, as if they were desirous of compensating us in some degree, for the loss we have sustained in being prohibited from indulging our eye-sight with a view of their neck, arms &c. I am moreover informed that it is absolutely necessary to wear corsets with the frocks above described; I might here, Mr Medley, make with propriety a digression and explain agreeably to the fundamental principles of anatomy, the injury done to the lungs &c. and in what manner this injury is effected by the pressure of the corsets, but as this probably would not be understood by many of your readers I shall defer it. How different are the present generation from our good old ancestors who were content to be as nature formed them? There is another inconvenience attendant on these dresses which I thought would be an insuperable objection to their general use, but in this I was disappointed, for what can female ingenuity not accomplish? I stated above that the neck was encircled with a number of ruffles called collerets, this circumstance I thought would make it impossible to wear either a shawl, coat or tippet; in this supposition I was correct and I mentioned the objection to a female acquaintance; but mark the cunning of fashion; I was told that when going to a party it is customary to carry the ruff in the hand & put it on after the shawl, coat &c. are taken off. I do not mean to censure the ladies of the present day by any thing which I have said, for I am well aware that dress is the passe par-tout which introduces us into all polite assemblies, I only want to show the astonishing influence fashion possesses over us and also to show that if we are satisfied to have a "superfluous yard of broad cloth dangling at our heels" the ladies are content to have their necks encumbered with a prodigious quantity of equally superfluous muslin.

SPECTATOR.

Progress of old age in new studies.

Socrates learnt to play on musical instruments in his old age. Cato, at eighty thought proper to learn Greek. Plutarch, almost as late in life, Latin.

Theophrastus began his admirable work on the characters of men at the extreme age of ninety. He only terminated his literary labors by his death.

Peter Repsard, one of the fathers of French Poetry, applied late to study, but by the acuteness of his genius, and continual application, he rivalled those poetic models he so much admired.

One John Gelida, a Spaniard, commenced the studies of polite literature at forty.

Henry Spelman neglected the sciences in his youth, cultivated them at fifty years of age, and produced good fruit.

Fairfax, after having been general of the parliamentary forces, retired to Oxford to take his degrees in law.

Colbert, the famous French minister, almost at sixty, returned to his Latin and law studies.

Tellier, the chancellor of France, learnt logic merely for an amusement, to dispute with his grand-children.

Dryden's most pleasing productions were written in his old age. Dr. Johnson applied himself to the Dutch language but a few years before his death. But on this head the Marquis de St. Aulaire may be regarded as a prodigy: at the age of seventy he began to court the Muses, and they crowned him with their sweetest flowers. His verses are full of fire, of delicacy, and sweetness. Voltaire says, that Anacreon, less old produced less charming compositions. The observation is not unjust.

St. LOUIS, April 19.

Last Wednesday week, an extraordinary hail-storm was experienced here, and within several miles of this place. Calves, pigs, turkeys, geese, and several other animals exposed to its fury, were instantly killed. Several of the hail-stones measured six inches in circumference.

Mr. Scull,

Sir—I think it a duty I owe to the public to inform them of the benefits arising from the Plaister lately brought to Pittsburgh by H. & W. Jack.

I have made an experiment and have no hesitation in pronouncing it equal if not superior to other plaister brought from different parts of the world. Therefore those who are desirous of improving their meadows, (for a proof of its good effects) will please call on the subscriber at the Black-horse tavern, 4 miles east of Pittsburgh.

FOR A SNUG FORTUNE OF $20000 go and pay $7 to

who have had the pleasure of granting in two late Lotteries to different deserving people the following handsome fortunes, viz one of $30000, one of 25000, one of 20000, one of 15000, two of 10000 each, besides many of 5000, 2000, 1000, 700, 500 &c. The ticket which drew the above 25000 dollar prize, was, by S. & M. ALLEN sent to Pittsburgh and there repeatedly offered for sale, but as no person could be found in all this populous, wealthy, flourishing, and enlightned city possessing a disposition to purchase the 25000 for the trifling sum of 7 or 8 dols. the poor, despised and neglected ticket was compelled to undergo a retrogade transportation over the mountains to one of the Atlantic cities from whence it came; after which S. & M. Allen divided and sold it in shares, one share to a poor soldier who had lost a leg in the service of his Country.

It is presumed that the citizens of Pittsburgh and its vicinity on reflecting how easily they might have obtained that splendid prize, and that they can now as easily obtain 20000 or 10000 dols. that they will without delay repair to

AT A MEETING

Of a number of the merchants, traders and other citizens of the city of Pittsburgh, convened agreeably to public notice, at the "Pittsburgh Hotel," on Saturday evening the 3d of May 1817, for the purpose of taking into consideration, the propriety of aiding our fellow-citizens of Philadelphia, in establishing a line of waggons, to run between the two cities, for the more safe and speedy transportation of merchandize from Philadelphia to the western country, and produce to Philadelphia.—The rev. ROBERT PATTERSON, was appointed Chairman—and WILLIAM B. FOSTER, Sec'ry.—The articles of association of the "Philadeldhia and Pittsburgh Transporting Company,"—being read to the meeting by the secretary,

On motion resolved, That this meeting highly approves of the same:

Resolved, That a committee of three persons be appointed, to obtain subscriptions to the capital stock of the "Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Transporting Company,"—and that the following gentlemen compose the committee, viz. WM. ROBINSON, Junior—H. C. BOSLER and M. ALLEN.

Resolved, That the above resolutions be signed by the president and secretary—and published in all the news-papers printed in Pittsburgh and a copy transmitted to the secretary of the company, in Philadelphia.

The Genuine Japan Varnish,

FOR BOOTS, SHOES, &c.

J. BYRNE,

Respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has commenced the manufacture of the real JAPAN VARNISH for boots, shoes, carriage harnessing, ladies morrocco shoes, &c.

This inestimable composition unrivalled for its superior excellence, as well as being beneficial to the leather, produces the most beautiful and shining jet black ever beheld.

Its qualities have perhaps never before been concentrated in any other composition. It acts as an emolient, rendering the leather soft, pliant and durable—Is not subject to turn foetid as other compounds do—Is suitable to all climates and seasons—When polished, will not soil the whitest linen, and the cost of purchase is four fold repaid in the durability imparted to the leather by the lubricating quality of the Varnish.

Gentlemen sensible of the good effects of personal appearance will give this a decided preference to any thing ever before offered to the public.

The Japan Varnish is put up in Jars at 50 cents each, with proper directions for using, with the makers name affixed in his own chirograph to the label on each jar, and sealed on the cork with wax impressed with the initials J. B.

Sold at Byrne's Umbrella manufactory, Fourth street—Pittsburgh—where all orders will be gratefully received and punctually executed and a liberal allowance given to retailers.
